From the Paris Gazette, dated Aug. 25.

Madrid, Auguſt 6.

THE King has given the Order of the Golden Fleece to the Duke de Popoli, in Conſideration of his Services on ſeveral Occaſions, particularly in commanding the Army in Catalonia. The 4th a Courier from the Camp before Barcelona (which he left the 29th paſt) brought an Account, that the Covered-Way would be attacked the 30th, and that it was guarded only by Burghers, becauſe they feared that if they placed regular Troops there they would deſert.

Perpignan, Aug. 10. We have received from the Camp before Barcelona a Journal of the Siege from the 18th of July to the 3d of Auguſt. The chief Particulars in it are theſe following. The 19th Sig. d' Aſturias Lieutenant-General, M. de Maulevrier Major-General, the Duke d' Havré and M. Sarrotte Brigadiers mounted the Trenches, with 10 Battallions, 6 Companies of Grenadiers, 1800 Workmen, and 300 Horſe: And from that time the Trenches were relieved Daily by the like General Officers, and the ſame Number of Troops, with much about the like Number of Workmen. Two Deſerters affirmed, that the Officers who came out of the Town the Day before, and were ſent to Peniſcola, were ſent out with Deſign to raiſe the Country, and that they did not pretend to paſs for Deſerters till they ſaw themſelves ſeized by the Patroll. The Beſieged made a great Fire all Day, by which 4 Men were killed and 16 wounded, among them Brigadier Sarrotte, but ſlightly. The 20th three Deſerters reported, that the Beſieged flattered themſelves with Succours from Naples, and from the Miquelets, to be commanded as they imagined by the Officers who were ſeized and ſent to Peniſcola: Which induced the Marſhal Berwick to ſend Orders for their being brought back to the Camp. That Day 10 Men were killed and 20 wounded. The 21ſt 12 Men were killed or wounded. The 22d the Marſhal Berwick went in the Night to view the Works, and ordered two new Batteries, one of 6 Guns againſt the Baſtion of St. Claire, and the other of 4 at the Attack of the Capuchins. In the Night 40 Cannon and 20 Mortars were drawn up to the Batteries; at the Head of them marched two Pair of Kettle-Drums, four Trumpets, and a Set of Hautbois, which anſwered each other alternatively: The Muleteers in returning from the Batteries, took off the Wiſps of Straw which they had faſtened to the Bells to hinder their Striking, and then they made a very great Noiſe. That Day 30 Men were killed and 20 wounded. The 23d in the Night 20 Cannon and 8 Mortars were drawn up to the Batteries, in the ſame Manner as the former. 20 Soldiers were killed and 12 wounded. The 24th the 9 Battallions of French which were expected, arrived in the Camp, and the Night following the Marſhal Berwick went and viewed the Batteries which were finiſhed. An Officer, 12 Troopers, and 3 Foot-Soldiers deſerted from the Beſieged and reported, that Proclamation had been made in the Town, that all Sorts of Perſons, even Prieſts and Monks, ſhould repair to work on a great Intrenchment, which was begun at the new Gate and to be carried on to a Place called Locate, taking in the Monaſteries of St. Auguſtine and St. Claire. An Officer of the Spaniſh Guards and 25 Soldiers were killed and 15 wounded. The 25th being the Feaſt of St. James, whoſe Name the Marſhal Berwick bears, he went into the Trenches at 4 in the Morning, and cauſed Maſs to be celebrated there by the Vicar-General of the Army, who afterwards bleſſed the Artillery. At 5 in the Morning, all the Cannon and Mortars fired; the Royal Battery againſt the Curtain, from the Angle of the Baſtion of the new Gate to that of the Baſtion of St. Claire; the other two Batteries againſt the laſt mentioned Baſtion and againſt the Redoubt of St. Eulalia, near the Sea. A Bomb from the Place blew up 12 Barrels of Powder, without doing any other Damage. The Batteries made a great Fire Day and Night, which leſſened the Fire of the Place. 12 Men were killed and 8 wounded. 40 Soldiers deſerted, and affirmed that all the reſt would do ſo too, if they could find Opportunity. The 26th the two Engliſh Men of War which were in the Road, put to Sea, the Barceloners having anſwered, that the Effects which they reclaimed, were of abſolute and neceſſary Uſe to them in their preſent Circumſtances, and that they would reſtore them or the Value of them, after the Raiſing of the Siege. The Batteries having fired without Intermiſſion, the Foot-Way within the Ramparts began to lie open to the View of the Beſiegers. In the Night 24 Mortars began to fire all together, and ſo continued with frequent Diſcharges. 24 Deſerters came over from the Town, who reported that they began to talk much there of ſurrendring; that the Cannon did them great Miſchief, and that the Right of the Attack had cut off the Courſe of a little Stream which ſerved to turn their Powder-Mill. The Beſieged fired but little, and by long Intervals. The Captain of the Grenadiers of the Regiment of Caſtile, loſt a Leg by the Shivers of a Bomb; and 6 Soldiers were killed and 10 wounded. The 27th 4 Deſerters came over; a Swiſs Captain was killed with with 20 Soldiers, 12 were wounded, and the Count de Mirabel Ingenier was shot through both his Cheeks with a Musquet-Ball. The 28th three Branches were run out on the Right and as many on the Left, to augment the Fire from the Trenches. A Deserter reported, that the 25th a great Assembly was held in the Town-House, where the Council of an Hundred met. Several of them proposed to surrender: But Villaroel, Pinos a Man of Quality, Basset one of the principal Authors of the Revolt of the Kingdom of Valencia, and a Grand Vicar of the Bishoprick, rejected that Proposition, the latter assuring them of Assistance from Heaven, and Basset said he had the Secret of making a Powder which would blind and stupify the Besiegers when they should mount to the Assault. Upon such Assurances they resolved to defend themselves; However, Villaroel sent his Wife into Monjuy, whither the chief Ladies of the Town have retired. In the Night a Captain of the Regiment of Corduba was killed, with 12 Soldiers, and 20 were wounded. The 29th the Saps were continued, as was also the Fire for enlarging the Breach, that in the Curtain lay open 20 Toises, and that in the East Bastion 10. Three Deserters who came out in the Night through the Breach, reported, that the Evening before the Besieged drew together 12 or 13000 Persons of all Conditions, and of every Age from twelve Years, in order to make a great Sally: But when they were to have marched, that Multitude had dispersed themselves, all but 500. The Enemy firing no more from the Covered-Way, two Grenadiers were sent to take a View, and they reported that there was no body there. The Captain of Grenadiers of Salamanca was wounded, with 20 Soldiers, and 10 were killed. The 30th, all the Artillery of the Besieged being dismounted, they could no longer cast out any thing but Stones. In the Evening the Marshal Berwick went into the Trenches, whence about 8 or 9 at Night 4 Companies of Grenadiers on the Right and as many on the Left were commanded to advance towards the saliant Angles of the Bastions of the new Gate and of St. Claire; those Grenadiers leapt into the Covered-Way, and put to the Sword the few Enemies they found there, then they lodged themselves there. At the same time a Parallel was begun at the Foot of the Glacis, for the Communication of one of the saliant Angles with the other. In the Night the Besieged attempted to retake the Covered-Way; but they were vigorously repulsed by the Grenadiers, and in this Action 50 or 60 Men were killed or wounded. A Captain of the Grenadiers of Castile and a Lieutenant of the Regiment de la Marine were killed, and M. Arthur an Ingenier was wounded. Two Batteries were raised on the saliant Angles, to ruine the Flanks of the Bastions of the new Gate and of St. Claire. Preparations were making to set the Miners to work under them, and to fill up the Ditch which is not deep. According to Advices of the 6th, the Miners were set to work the 1st and 2d Instant, new Batteries were raising, and all necessary Preparations making for giving the Assault or for making a Lodgment on the Breach the 8th.
